

In these difficult times the Worcester Foodbank is particularly relevant. Indeed, Archbishop Justin Welby has specifically encouraged church congregations to give their support to those in need in society by, amongst other things, making donations to food banks.

You may be wondering how you can donate to the Worcester Foodbank now that – in line with government instructions - the church is closed. There two ways in which you can continue to make contributions:

1. You can donate money online, via the Worcester Foodbank website - worcester.foodbank.org.uk . There's a big red button on the home page.
2. You can leave contributions in the donation bins in the supermarkets.

Thank you for your continuing support for the Worcester Foodbank.
